Welcome!

We'll start a few minutes after "start time".

In the meantime:

- Open the PDF workbook (or locate it if you've printed it). We'll be using this throughout the workshop.
- Share your video if possible! It helps everyone to engage a bit more easily. Keep yourself muted when you're not speaking.
- Locate the chat (to ask questions and participate)
- Close email, messaging apps, or any other distracting windows to help you get the most out of the session!

Pro tip:
Ask it WHY it made the updates it did.

You're an expert written communicator. I've written this email to a colleague and my goal is to come across warm and friendly. I don't want them to misinterpret my email. Can you edit this draft with this in mind? Here's the email: Hi Joe, We really need to get this deck finalized before the deadline on Friday. I'm sure you're on it, but could I get an update?. Best, Alexis

Here's your email adjusted to come across warm, friendly, and supportive:

Subject: Quick check-in on the deck

Hi Joe,

Hope you're having a great day! I just wanted to check in about the deck we're finalizing. I know you've been on top of it, but would you mind sharing a quick update on where things stand? Let me know if there's anything I can do to help as we get closer to Friday's deadline.

Thanks so much!
Alexis

How did it come across before you fixed it for me?

Your original email was clear and concise, but could have come across as slightly abrupt or overly direct, depending on your colleague's communication style or the context of your relationship.

Specifically, your original wording:

> "We really need to get this deck finalized before the deadline on Friday. I'm sure you're on it, but could I get an update?"

might have been interpreted as:

- Impatient or slightly demanding ("We really need to get this deck finalized")
- Suggesting doubt about Joe's progress ("I'm sure you're on it, but...")

By softening the language and adding a friendly greeting, your revised email now clearly conveys support, warmth, and collaborative intent.

Feedback on Your Writing

- Does the tone match my intended style (approachable, pragmatic, empathetic, etc.)?
- Is this persuasive? If not, how can I make it more compelling?
- Is my main point clear and easy to understand?

Can you please give me step by step instructions to enable and configure the Bookings feature in Microsoft Outlook

Hey Alexis! Enabling and configuring the Bookings feature in Microsoft Outlook involves a few steps, depending on whether you're setting it up for personal use or for your organization. Here's a step-by-step guide to help you through the process:

1. Ensure Microsoft Bookings is Enabled for Your Organization

Before you can use Bookings, it needs to be enabled at the organizational level:

- For Administrators:
  1. Sign in to the Microsoft 365 admin center as a global admin. Microsoft Learn
  2. Navigate to Settings > Org settings. Microsoft Learn
  3. Select Shared Bookings and check the box for Allow your organization to use Bookings to enable it. Microsoft Learn +1
  4. Click Save Changes. Microsoft Learn

Note: If you're not an admin, you'll need to contact your organization's IT department to ensure Bookings is enabled.

2. Access Microsoft Bookings

Once Bookings is enabled: YouTube

- Go to Microsoft Bookings and sign in with your Microsoft 365 credentials. Home +1

3. Set Up Your Booking Page

Depending on your needs, you can set up either a personal booking page or a shared booking page: Home +4

- For a Personal Booking Page:
  1. On the Bookings homepage, click on "Go to my booking page". Home

Make it sound like you

1. Give it a few examples of your writing
2. Ask it for adjectives that describe your writing
3. When you ask it to help you write something, include the adjectives it gave you

How to Get The Best Results

- Use best practices for prompting (RACE/CRAFTS)
  - Give it a role
  - Give it good inputs (the more specific the better)
  - Give it a tone
  - Give it examples
- Ask it to critique its own work
- Then ask it to implement the changes
- Ask it to ask you questions about your prompt in order to give you better answers
- Iterate until you get what you want
- If using ChatGPT, enter your global preferences and personalization details.
